Foreign travel helps people learn about themselves. ___ In order to know whom one is, one must first learn from where one came. ___ Researching one's roots places that person in the context of history, much like finding out where a single jigsaw puzzle piece fits to complete the whole puzzle. Only travel offers the complete solution to that puzzle.

___ Doing primary research on one's family is called genealogy. Genealogy has become an extremely popular hobby and researching on-scene is very rewarding. Many travelers decide to visit their ancestors' homeland on their first trip abroad. ___ Say if one's grandparents came from Scotland, the traveller might decide to begin foreign travel in that country. ___ Ric Smeeves, travel expert, comments, "Walking where your ancestors once walked gives you an up-close understanding of their geography, culture, climate, and history." ___ Finding an original marriage license, baptism record, or property deed almost brings that relative back to life. Visiting a cemetery and seeing one's ancestral name on headstones is meaningful. Meeting a distant cousin face to face adds a new dimension to one's genealogical research. Travel makes self-discovery possible.

More and more people are using travel for research. ___ Some argue that now with the vast genealogical resources of the computer, foreign travel is no longer necessary. However, seeing a copy of an original document online does not match the feeling of holding it in one's hands; watching a YouTube video clip does not produce the tastes of local cooking or smells of the ancestral town. Nothing replaces the experience of foreign travel. ___ In fact, applications for passports have increased by over 300% in the last decade alone.

a new nation	that nation, any nation, that nation conceived in liberty	dedicated to the proposition we are engaged	We are met so conceived	so dedicated we cannot dedicate	we cannot consecrate, we cannot hollow who struggled here	what we say here, what they did here, to be dedicated here, they who fought here that these dead	that this nation shall not have died in vain	shall have a new birth of freedom, shall not perish from the earth of the people	by the people, for the people
